From a youth member of the group

Sunday 21st February was the day of the Teretere Mapu for 2016 with all the members of our Mapu, new and existing, young and old, Rev. Takaikura Masters lead us three blocks down the road to the Titikaveka CICC. We were warmly greeted by leaders of the village and church who noticed the unified beauty we entered.

First to the deliverance of messages, we stood on stage glowing with the glorifying rays of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, who was with us throughout our whole presentation, that we delivered with such grace pride and belief in everything, from the tatau, singing, tears were sufficient. All of the presentations, including that of Vaimanaga, Tikioki and Nga-Tapere, were outstandingly touching.

Every single youth that stood up on stage knew what to say and believed in what they said. It was such a beautiful sight to see all these young people delivering God's message. All the singing and performances were inspiring.

On behalf of the leaders and all the members of Matavera CICC youth, I would like to thank our Ekalesia for the strong support that you gave us. We were proud to represent you all at this occasion that you will forever be in our hearts. May God bless us all. We all started off fresh with a new style for 2016, let us keep fresh to encourage all of our youth to come and stay.

8. THE LOVE CAFE OPENS FOR BUSINESS

Cafe is simply a small restaurant selling light meals and drinks. If this definition is too restrictive, try this: "A coffeehouse, coffee shop, or café is an establishment which primarily serves hot coffee, related coffee beverages (e.g., café latte, cappuccino, espresso), tea, and other hot beverages. Some coffeehouses also serve cold beverages such as iced coffee and iced tea. Many cafés also serve some type of food, such as light snacks, muffins, or pastries. Coffeehouses range from owner-operated small businesses to large multinational companies such as Starbucks." (Wikipedia the Free Encyclopedia). Café is a popular spot the world over, a place where one can run to or pop in to pick up something fast to munch on, especially when you're in a hurry or you don't feel like cooking after work, or you simply want a break from the normal and at times boaring dinner-at-home routine.

Cafes normally have names; names of relatives, places, pets, cosmic stars, famous movie stars and characters, objects like fruits, vegetables, rootcrops, etc. Some names are rather strange, unusual, uncommon as well as common, hard to pronounce, unclear what it means, or as simple as ABC. How about The LOVE CAFÉ; well that's really uncommon nevertheless easy to pronounce, a well-known term and of course eye-catching, in fact I've never come across a name like this in my 30-odd years of travel! As they saying goes, behind every name is a meaning.

The newest Café on the beach, The Love Café, opened its doors for business on Tuesday 23 February up at Karekare on the eastern end of Tupapa, Avarua, almost on the border between Avarua and Matavera. Owned and operated by Nathan Iavaiti, son of the late Harry Iavaiti and his surviving mum Dorothy Iavaiti, it had a small but rather spiritual opening which was officiated over by Rev. Takaikura Marsters of the Matavera CICC and attended by some church members as well as other invited guests, families and friends of the Iavaiti family.

After Nathan himself gave a welcome and thankyou speech, including making reference to his late father who incidentally suggested the name to him whilst living in Aitutaki, Nathan's mum also spoke and explained to everyone present on what was actually behind the name Love when attached to Café. She said that the meaning is in the name, it's a place where we'd love to go and eat and meet up with friends. However, more importantly she said, it has a spiritual meaning attached to it; Love comes from God and God is Love, according to the Bible (1 John 4.7-9). Well, who can argue with that!

So we can then say that God is part of this Café, given that his own servant, Rev. Marsters, gave the blessing for it, and God himself through his spirit, is going to help my son Nathan manage this café so that it truly becomes a place where people will love to pop in for a yarn and a bite. And no doubt his dad Harry will be watching over him (Nathan) as he strives to make his mark in the competitive food catering industry.

The ceremony was topped up by a sumptuous table laden with snacks fit for the occasion. All the best to you Nathan, may the spirit behind the name of your café take you a long way in your venture. And please, don't charge "friends rates" and certainly don't entertain the Maori "make the name" attitude, its not good for business.

10. DESCENDANTS OF REV. JOHN HUTCHIN VISIT TAKAMOA

Vsits to, or contacts with, Takamoa by descendants of the early LMS Missionaries to the Cook Islands have been regular occurrences over the past years, even descendants of the same Missionary, like those of Rev. J.J.K. Hutchin who was based here at Takamoa, Rarotonga, for 30 long years from 1882 – 1912. The most recent visit was by great grand daughter Elizabeth Kinneir, husband Ross, and their children Anna and Simon, on Tuesday 8 March 2016 (photo below).

In Loving Memory

OF

Rev. J. J. K. HUTCHIN,

(Thirty year Missionary in Rarotonga.)

WHO DIED AT WELLINGTON, SEPTEMBER, 27th, 1912.

AGED 55.

Servant of God, well done;
Rest from thy loved employ;
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy.

Headstone of Rev. J.J.K. Hutchin who passed away in 1912.

DEATH OF MRS. HUTCHIN

Elderly people in Rarotonga will hear with deep sorrow of the death of Mrs. Hutchin (Atoni Vaine), widow of the Rev. J. J. K. Hutchin, missionary in Rarotonga from 1882 to 1912. With their sorrow there will be mingled the grateful remembrance of her loving and cheerful service in Takamoa, the head station of the L.M.S. in Rarotonga.

Mrs. Hutchin lived with her daughter, Mrs. Roy, at Invercargill, where she died on December 23rd at the advanced age of 94, and was buried on Christmas Day.

Down deep in her heart Mrs. Hutchin had a sincere respect for the Barotongans; and they responded to this with complete confidence and affection. This affectionate trust was held firmly by her and her husband through the strife and turmoil that arose in the initial stages of New Zealand's administration of the Cook Islands.

Mrs. Hutchin was a loyal missionary of the L.M.S.; a faithful friend to the people; and an earnest servant of the Lord.

"Eternal rest grant unto her, O Lord".

Prior to visiting Takamoa, the Kinneir family was invited to a reception put up by the Cook Islands Library & Museum Society, in recognition of Rev. Hutchin's contribution to education during his time on Rarotonga. Members of the society put up morning tea for the family which was appreciated by everyone who attended; I was privileged to be invited on behalf of the CICC. Meitaki maata CILMS for the invite and the Kinneir family for visiting. May the memory of Rev. Hutchin live on.

2. Colourful Evening

THE WORKS OF THE HOLY SPIRIT 2016. Rarotonga CICC Youth Church Service was held Sunday 28th February 2016 in the evening in the Matavera CICC church. It was a special service for the blessing of the new Council members from Ngatangiia, Titikaveka, Arorangi, Nikao, Avarua & Matavera. Each youth group participated in the order of service by singing Imene Tuki. Matavera Youth is the host for the Council this year and they wore a new golden printed uniform that shone through all youth members. The evening went well. Congratulations to all the new Council Members. Te Atua te aroa kia kotou katoatoa i teia mataitai 2016.

5. Opening church parade at Avarua

NEW YEAR WITH A GOOD SPIRIT, awesome gathering. Welcome to our first combined church parade on Sunday morning at 10am, 14th February 2016 on a beautiful day at Avarua Ekalesia for the Uniform Organizations from the 6 Ekalesias. Excellent turn out for most members in the Boys' Brigade, Girls' Brigade and Girl Guides. The BB Brass Band played their part so the little ones can enjoy their marching to church. We would like to acknowledge the Avarua Ekalesia for providing refreshments, Meitaki Maata.

6. World Thinking Day

CONNECT TO THE COMMUNITY. Girl Guide World Thinking Day for this year was held at the Sinai Hall, Avarua at 5pm, 22nd February 2016 hosted by the Avarua Girl Guides Company. Our global theme says “Connect to the Community.” To support our theme, we are doing a survey on our valuable people in each Vaka in supporting the Cook Islands National Disability Council in the area of Disaster Management. Each section had to participate into a planned activity as follows:

- ✓ The Brownies section did floral arrangement or sewing eis.
- ✓ The Guides section prepared a short history from each country that was given to them to do.
- ✓ The Rangers section did a gadget work on clothesline. Each company brought their own resources.

The Scout leaders and boys took part in the gadget work. Parents and invited guests witness what the girls and leaders did and with the lighting, blowing and cutting of the birthday cake too. Lots of sharing, listening and learning about guiding stories. Every year it is part of our national program to celebrate World Thinking Day. Food contribution from all the guide companies was blessed by the pastor and was donated to the Catholic Church. The evening closed with a kaikai.

Other participation

Whenever she comes to Rarotonga, she always ensure she brings her Girl Guide uniform to participate in any Girl Guide event/program such as the Sunday Church Parades, Monday meetings, ANZAC Day, World Thinking Day celebration, Cook Islands Day, National Camps and Training Workshops.

Guiding Positions

Mama Nga has been one of the Founding members in the Nikao Girl Guides Company and has been an active member and Leader in her life. Continued her guiding roles to Mitiaro while her and her husband was stationed at Mitiaro School and after their term in Mitiaro, they both recited to Atiu Island and there she became involved in guiding actively and strongly. In 2006, the Girl Guide in the Cook Islands established a new initiative for the betterment of young women in the Cook Islands by introducing the Duke of Edinburgah Award Program. Atiu has got registered more than 10 girls in both guiding companies on the island and Mama Nga Mokoroa was chosen to be the Co-ordinator and work closely with the national co-ordinators. They managed to complete and achieved over 10 young women in the Bronze Level in 2008. In 2009 they received a community initiative Scheme fund to support their young women in the area of completing their Silver level, which took place in Mangaia Island. Mama Nga is an experienced trainer in the movement mainly in Brownies section, but also trained in the Girl Guide and the Ranger section too. She made friends through the movement and learn a lot from being thrifty and resourceful. She upholds her Guiding Motto firmly in her life, which says BE PREPARED.

Scenes from the 80th birthday of Mama Nga Mokoroa, held at Nikao CICC Hall, Saturday 12 March 2016. Mama Nga has a long history with the Girl Guide movement of the Cook Islands. The occasion was celebrated by many family and friends including her GG associates.

9. Working Together is Success

THE ART OF WORKING TOGETHER. The quote says Coming together is the beginning. Keeping together is progress. Working together is success (Henry Ford). The Rutaki & Aroa Christian Youth Club members worked towards an exciting plan for them this year 2016. The new Executive members developed a new way to bring the youth members together. Some of their proposed projects for this year 2016 include;

- Clean and clear their beach section at their Meeting House boundary
- Planting vegetables and root crops
- Participate and strengthen in their church monthly cleaning programs
- Contribute in any community activities and others

Saturday 27th February 2016 in the morning – most members came with their cleaning tools for their working bee which was enjoyed by everyone.

10. World Day of Prayer

HELLO IN CUBAN LANGUAGE. The women groups from the 5 religion on the island of Rarotonga from the Apostolic church, Seven Day Adventist, Latter Day Saint, Catholic and the CICC came together to celebrate this evening at the Avarua Catholic Parish at 6.00pm. Each religion was given a colored scarf allocated to identify the different groups. The theme for the evening is for the Children and our country is called CUBA.

Each group took part in the order of service by contributing a song/hymn or a reading in English or Maori according to the program. Our young women from the Avarua Ekalesia did the reading for the CICC branch and we all wore RED from the 6x Ekalesia. The Cuban logo or flower is called the Butterfly Jasmine or in another word for us is the white ginger (Kopi teatea). After the church service, everyone was invited to a light refreshment at the St Joseph Hall. The evening went well and God bless you all.

The money that was collected that evening was donated to the Fiji Cyclone Appeal on Tuesday afternoon at the BSP Bank, who helped the Committee for the transferring of the money to Fiji with the amount of $ 1,000.00 from all the women during the World Day of Prayer Service on Thursday 3rd March 2016. Vinaka vaka levu to all the women's of the Cook Islands, especially from the World Day of Prayer Committee.

All 10 articles and photos above were submitted by NGARA KATUKE; she currently holds the following positions:

- National President, Girl Guide Cook Islands
- Sunday School Teacher, Tapere Rutaki, Arorangi CICC
- Treasurer, Rutaki & Aroa Christian Youth
- Secretary, Rutaki Vainetini
- Assistant Treasurer, Arorangi CICC Vainetini
- President, Cook Isl Civil Society Organization (CICSO), the national umbrella for all NGO's in the Cook Islands

13. CELEBRATING EASTER AT NIKAO

On Easter Monday in the morning we all gathered down at the Matavera Sunday School known as Gibeona. Just after nine o'clock the bus came and before we hop on the bus the Papa Orometua said a short prayer. Then we all went on the bus to Nikao. On our way there we stopped at the back road to see the Air New Zealand plane take off. As the plane taxied on the runway passed our bus we all waved and continued to Nikao. We were going to Nikao because the youth invited us to celebrate Easter Monday with them.

On arrival at Nikao church, we were greeted by some of the members who were getting everything ready for the day. We decided to sit under the mango tree as we were early. While waiting, Papa Orometua and Mama Orometua from Nikao came to greet us on their way to the hall. Then the MC of the day made the announcement for everyone to get ready to march in with the music. As soon as the music came everyone moved by marching and because the music sounded so good the mama's like Mami Pu decided to make it even better by dancing, even the host were all dancing on the stage. In front of the hall was where everyone gathered for the event. The Papa Orometua from Nikao said the opening prayer followed by the welcome speech by the Chairlady of the Panama/Turama youth group. The MC of the day was Hannah Rasmussen assisted by Kurahiti Rasmussen, Papa Oirua Rasmussen Junior and Saungaki Rasmussen. After the speeches, Saungaki outlined the program of the day. Then the two teams gathered at their allocated area for the events of the day.

Waiting under the mango tree at Nikao for the opening ceremony, then marching in for the opening.

Panama/Turama in red, us Matavera in white getting ready for the bag race.

The event of the day started with “sack race.” In the event it starts like from pre-school, primary, juniors, intermediate, seniors, youth then the mamas and papas. The distances for each age group is also different. Second event was the “three legged race”, with the same arrangement like the sack race. Third activity was the “balloon stomping”, where there was a circle marked with cone and each team has to put forward seven players with a balloon tied to one of their legs and the opposite side had to stomp the balloon, and the team who manage to hold on their balloon wins the game. Fourth activity was the eating competition, “eating the doughnut off the string tied to a volley ball net.” This was set for intermediate, seniors and youth. Then followed by the “eating the spaghetti in a plate on the table” which was set for the adult. Fifth activity was a race called “spin around the stick” where a person runs to a cone while someone is there to take the count while spinning and then race back for the next person until to the last person allocated in the team. Sixth activity was the “wheel barrow race” by everyone and the seventh activity was the “volleyball competition for everyone.” The final activity for the day was the “Bible quiz” based on Easter and questions were posed by Papa Orometua from Nikao as well as Papa Orometua from Matavera.

Preparing for the spaghetti eating, and the eating of the spaghetti from the plate without using the hands.

Three-legged race, eating doughnut tied on string.

The day ends by Papa Orometua of Nikao announcing the points and in the end the Winner is Jesus Christ and because of him we have reasons to celebrate. Then he said the closing prayer followed by grace. Saungaki asked everyone to gather in the hall where there was a long table full of food for everyone to enjoy. Mama Haumata, Mama Pare and the others hand out the plates and both teams sat down to eat. More speeches from Mama Pu and Jonathan to thank the host for a job well done and see you in Matavera in 2017. Then the bus came and everyone made their way to the bus with a lot to celebrate for an enjoyable day.

The Thinker (French: Le Penseur) is a bronze sculpture by Auguste Rodin, usually placed on a stone pedestal. The work shows a nude male figure of over life-size sitting on a rock with his chin resting on one hand as though deep in thought, and is often used as an image to represent philosophy. Rebuilding of the Takamoa Theological College Students' Living Quarters (western side)

Theological student quarters 12 months ago

For every year of the building's existence, there was at least one volunteer cleaning the past for the future.

Beginning with a prayer at 6.30am, the time was set for much of the dismantling being done in the cool of the morning.

By the welcomed lunch break at 10.30am, only the thick coral walls remained.

Rather than call in the heavy machinery to demolish the former student quarters, manpower was used to dismantle the

Former LMS Missionary Returns ‘Home’

Rev. Bernard Thorogood first arrived in the Cook Islands from the United Kingdom in 1953 as a 26 year old missionary. Now 35 years after his departure in 1970, Thorogood returned for a visit to the islands that hold a special place in his life.

Thorogood, 78, was the 24th missionary from the London Missionary Society (LMS) to serve in the Cook Islands since 1823 when Rev. John Williams first visited the islands. “I was a student in England with the ministry. I offered my service to the LMS AND THEY APPOINTED ME TO THE Cook Islands in 1952. I didn’t know where the Cook Islands were, but we got on a ship in London and eventually got to Auckland and arrived here in Rarotonga in July of 1953,” says Thorogood.

Thorogood arrived with his wife and two young sons to continue the work of the LMS, the founders of the Cook Islands Christian Church (CICC). “We were in Aitutaki for three years and got to know the people. That’s where I learned the language. I arrived in July and the people of Aitutaki said ‘you’re going to preach in the (Maori) language in October.’ Well, I thought that’s a bit tough – but I managed it! It’s not just learning a language – it’s learning the whole culture. I’ve never had that experience anywhere else,” he says.

“One of the vital things about the islands, which of course I had to discover, was that the community is more important than the individual in the life of the islands. “I think that’s a good lesson for Europeans who come here. We have lost in western civilization this sense of deep belonging within a real social entity in which we are supported and cared for and to which we have duties and responsibilities. I think Polynesians knew that long ago, so it’s good that we could come and learn.”

In 1956, Thorogood was asked by the LMS to replace the Rev. William Murphy who had resigned from the position of principal at the Takamoa Theological College in Rarotonga. “In those days it was a one-man college – I had to do a bit of everything. We were generalists in those days, we weren’t specialists.” He says most of the curriculum at the college was in Maori using the Rarotongan bible.

“Takamoa had a great history so I was very conscious that there were many people ahead of me that had done magnificent work there – especially in the very early days when they translated the bible. I think they were tremendous characters.” Thorogood paid a visit to the college during his holiday and says, “The buildings are much nicer than they were. The student accommodations were pretty grim in my day and I never had enough money to do anything about it. The old mission house where we lived is still there. It’s great. I’m delighted.

Thorogood also spent three years in Kiribati helping to develop the curriculum for pastors studying in the islands. “They wanted me to try and raise the level of training. They were a difficult people altogether from the Polynesians. I never got such a good grip of the language up there as I did here,” he says.

Then there was the phase at which the churches across the Pacific were beginning to link together and we met each other for the first time. Out of that movement we built the Pacific Theological College in Suva so that we could get up to a university standard for training the pastors. The aim of that was people would do a year or two at Takamoa and then go on to Fiji. I think it was a good plan – the right thing for the time.”

He went back to the Theological College in 1968 and continued there as principal until 1970 when he was appointed the general secretary of the LMS and returned to England. For the next 10 years he visited the LMS missionaries around the world and saw how they were progressing in their ministries. “I got to know a little bit about the cultural religious mix in the various places where we were working. It was a great opportunity to experience the diversity and breadth of the church around the world. It was an education for me,” says Thorogood of those years.

Then in 1980 he moved on to become the general secretary of the United Reform Church in England and was responsible for overseeing the 750 ministries of the church. “I also served on the World Council of Churches.

So from a very tiny beginning in Aitutaki in 1953 – you could hardly have a smaller beginning to ministry. I had to launch out and deal with these international bodies.”

In 1992 Thorogood retired and moved to Sydney Australia with his wife Joan. “My first wife died in 1988 and I remarried Joan who is an Australian. I had a dream that I would be able to show her the islands where I started. And so we planned this holiday to come back and see Aitutaki and Rarotonga.” During his visit to Rarotonga, Thorogood visited three CICC churches and preached to the congregation in Maori. “I was at Titikaveka on Good Friday, Avarua on Easter Sunday and at Ngatangiia last Sunday.”

“It’s all very familiar to me,” he says of the churches. “What surprises me and the local people I think is that although its 35 years since I was here, the language has come back to me and I was able to preach in it.” “It’s quite remarkable. It’s there in the subconscious – I haven’t used it – and somehow it comes out,” says Thorogood smiling. Thorogood says the islands have not changed a great deal since his time here. “It’s all becoming more westernized but I don’ think the fundamentals of life have changed very much.”

Thorogood says the last decade spent in the Cook Islands was at the time the country was preparing for self-government. “Everything that dealt with the identity and the self-awareness of Cook Islands people was important. Two of the things I was involved in was the first national dance competition (CINAT) and the library and museum. So I’m glad that I was able to be part of that at the time of independence.”

“It was a good adventure and I’m glad to see it’s still there,” he says of the library. During his time in the Cooks, Thorogood also wrote his first book called “Not Quite Paradise” that was published in 1960 about what it was like to be a minister in the islands. “I wrote that as a youngster. I went on the ship to Manihiki and we got left there and it was six weeks or something to the next boat. I had nothing to read – so I started writing,” he says laughing.

“I haven’t looked at it for 50 years. I hope it’s still sensible! I don’t know if I could recommend it to anybody now,” he says modestly. Thorogood says his short time in Manihiki was a good experience. He says he got to know the people well and preached at the two churches. “When you live in Rarotonga you don’t realize how different the atolls of the north are. It was good to live there and go out pearl diving on the lagoon in Manihiki. That was a little part of my coming to understand the islands.”

Thorogood never wrote another book about the Cooks but did go on to write more about Christianity in later years that were published in Britain. “I think I’ve done twelve or thirteen of them altogether. None of them best-sellers! I hope that what I’ve tried to write has been part of my own development.”

Thorogood says his recent visit to Aitutaki and Rarotonga was enjoyable and he met up with many old friends who remember him from his days in Rarotonga. “The things that stay in my mind are the friendships and the friendliness and the generosity of the people. I mean, you come here as a papaa from far away and you don’t know anything about it and yet they show you great courtesy and generosity. And that’s always been the way. I can only think of that with thankfulness.”

Today Thorogood enjoys his retirement and still helps out at his church which is a Methodist and Presbyterian congregational body called the Uniting Church in Sydney. “In my work over the last 50 years, I’ve been concerned with drawing the churches together rather than having them stand apart. And I think particularly this week when we’re thinking of the Pope’s funeral we should think of the things which draw the churches together.” “We don’t agree with each other about everything but that’s no reason why we should be competitors. Because what stands in common across all the churches is the only thing that is ultimately important – now there’s a sermon for you.”

PART 3

Personal Reflections

A candid fictitious chat between 2 colleagues about a certain non-fictitious kind of fruit, call them Albert (A) and Boyd (B)

- A Hi Boyd, how's it going, man?
- B Good thanks mate, what's cooking?
- A Sorry nothing's cooking, but never mind we gonna talk about something that doesn't need cooking, and probably learn a lot from it, how's that?
- B Oh yeah, sounds great to me, well lets get started.
- A Right, okay, here we go, have you ever heard of something called Dragonfruit?
- B Dragonfruit? Is that some kind of fruit coming out of a dragon? Get real mate, talk about something more sensible. Do you really think there is something under the sun known by that name?
- A This is for real, pal, that's what it's called, whether you and I like it or not, that's just what the fruit is called! Now hear me out, I take it that you have no idea at all about this fruit?
- B You guessed it, tell me all about it, I'm all ears – and no fairy tales please.
- A Ok, as you wish. Dragonfruit is a night-blooming climbing cactus (Hylocereus undatus) native to Mexico and Central America, cultivated in tropical regions for its edible fruit. The fruit of this plant has red skin covered with large scales and white or pink flesh containing small black seeds.
- B Right, okay, you certainly sound like a botanist there for a moment, you know, someone who goes around studying plants and things. So tell me, why is it called by that rather weird name?
- A Well, it got its name by the way it looks. The large scales that cover the outside somehow looks like fire coming out of a dragon, the vine being the dragon.
- B Yeah? Really, certainly strange, man. Have you got a photo that I can actually see?
- A Yep, this is how it looks:

- B Oh, wow! Looks beautiful on the outside, now I think I can see why those scales are likened to a fire. So just one fruit on a vine?
- A No mate, there can be more, take a look at these photos below.

- B My goodness, 4 fruits on a vine, that's pretty amazing! Who's that guy?
 A That's Tana, he and his sister Debora helped their dad plant the vines about 2 years ago. So they're actually part-owners of those plants, cool yeah!
 B Oh welllll, do you have other pictures to show me?
 A At your service, mate, take a look at the following:

- B Mamamia, Al, I've never seen anything like that in my entire life! Those are ripe fruits, aren't they?
 A Yep, ripe and ready to eat.
 B Ready to eat? Just like that?
 A Just like that, slice it in half and in the mouth it goes. You don't eat the skin, only the flesh inside.
 B Ok, before we go eat some, tell me, before they get to the above ripe stage, how do they look or what happens?
 A Well, first of all the vines give out little buds which then turn into flowers, then develops into fruits, see the photos below:

- B Good stuff, Al! So from the bud to the eating stage, how long?
 A Oh, a few weeks only, we're not talking in terms of months.
 B And I guess you need to have green fingers to make a success out of it?
 A No, not really. Like other things, if you want to, you can have a tree just like Tana's & Debora's.
 B Yeah? Sounds simple and exciting. So what do I do?
 A First, cut some vines of about a couple of feet long.
 B From anybody's tree or from Tana's & Debora's?
 A From anybody that you go ask first, you don't go stealing people's things!
 B Ok, good advice, now once I got my vines of about 2 feet long as you said, then what?
 A Then you make a post with a cross on top, secure down an old bike tyre or a piece of wire mesh on top, just like the one Tana is standing by. The height of the post should be about 1.60m to 1.75m from the ground, plus you need to add another 0.50m to go into the ground. That means the total length would be between 2.10 to 2.25m, this of course includes the 0.50m that will go into the ground. Don't forget to nail a couple of braces at the bottom part going into the ground to make the post steady and not prone to falling over.
 B You're sounding like a builder now, from a botanist to a builder, are you some kind of Jack of All Trades or what? You certainly don't cease to amaze me sometimes!
 A Not quite, just enough to do this and do that, thus avoiding having to pay someone to do the job. You should try learning this and that yourself, good for the budget! Anyway thanks for interrupting, now back to our Dragonfruit stuff. After you've got your materials, that is the post and some vines, then you put the post in the ground and plant the vines around the post, 2 to 3 per post is sufficient, the vines shouldn't be too deep in the ground, 2 to 3 inches is fine. Don't plant under shady areas, Dragonfruit is a desert plant and likes plenty of sun.
 B Right, I'm sure I've got all of that. Coming from you, how can I go wrong! So I got my post and vines in the ground, and I remember you saying earlier on that Tana & his sister Debora helped their dad plant their trees 2 years ago, so that's about how long I will wait to eat the first fruits of my labour?
 A Sure thing mate, just 2 years. And for goodness sake, don't just plant one plant, plant a few, like up to 5 if you want just for home use. Otherwise plant heaps more if you want to sell.
 B Oh, one thing I forgot to ask you, pal. Now that I've seen the outside of the fruit, so how does the inside look like?
 A You obviously haven't been paying full attention to what I said earlier. I said that the inside of the fruit is either white or pink flesh, depending on the variety, and it contains small black seeds. You can see from the photos below:

- B Ok, gotcha, loud and clear, no more forgetting! Now the fun part, how does it taste?
 A To me, it tastes like a cross between a mango and a pawpaw – if you know what I mean. Very nice and tender tasting, not too sweet, certainly not sour or not mangarongaro as we sometimes call it.
 B No I don't know what you mean, can we go taste some from Tana's & Debora's trees?
 A Ahh, oh, mmmm, errh, yeah why not, no harm I guess, after all its Dragonfruit season right now, there won't be any more within the next month or so.
 B You will of course ask Tana & Debora first?
 A Yep, we certainly don't wanna get into trouble with those two! While I go tell them, you go buy a bowl of ice cream to go with it, tastes great with ice cream. No ice cream, no Dragonfruit.
 B You win, mate. Now let's get cracking!

Some wise sayings

How is a fool known by?

There's an old Arabian proverb that goes: A fool may be known by six things: anger without cause; speech without profit; change without progress; inquiry without object; putting trust in a stranger; and mistaking foes for friends. Earl Nightingale

A father's sacrifice

"You can be a baseball player and get an education, too," my father told me. We had an old car that was parked in our yard, and we sat in that car and talked and talked. I told him that I was going to drop out of school when I got a chance to play baseball. He turned around and put his hand on my shoulder. "Son, I quit school because I had to go to work to make a living. You don't have to. I put fifty cents on that dresser each morning for you to take to school to buy your lunch and whatever else you need. I only take twenty-five cents to work with me. It's worth more to me that you get an education than it is for me to eat. So let's hear no more about dropping out of school."

You don't forget this kind of sacrifice by your father. Herbert Aaron was always ready to deny himself something if it would help his family. Henry "Hank" Aaron

Some requisites for good living

There are nine requisites for contented living:

1. Health enough to make work a pleasure.
2. Wealth enough to support your needs.
3. Strength enough to battle with difficulties and forsake them.
4. Grace enough to confess your sins and overcome them.
5. Patience enough to toil until some good is accomplished.
6. Charity enough to see some good in your neighbor.
7. Love enough to move you to be useful and helpful to others.
8. Faith enough to make real the things of God.
9. Hope enough to remove all anxious fears concerning the future.

Johann Wolfgang von Goethe

Life changers

We know that television and computers are having a profound impact on our society and the world. At one time there were three major socialising influences: family, church and school. Now there is a fourth: television, with computer technology not far behind.

The economic and sociological implications for America are staggering – but we know appallingly little about them. For example, we know we must have a new generation of well-educated children to deal with this information society – but quite the reverse is occurring. For the first time in our history, the generation graduating from school is less literate than its parents. We don't know why, but we cannot shrug it off. Our nation will not remain strong if a large portion of the population is excluded from meaningful economic, political, or social participation because it cannot comprehend or deal with the demands of this new age.

Timothy E. Wirth

Sane or insane

A ruler devised a test to see which of the people in his kingdom were sane. The sane ones could continue to live in the kingdom; the others could not. He had built a building which had in it a tank into which flowed a stream of water from a pipe in the wall. Each person would be given a bucket of water and told to empty the tank. If he stopped the flow first and then emptied the tank, he was judged sane. Author unknown

Heartbreaking photo of grandad who cooked for all six grandkids – but only one turned up

He had made 12 burgers in anticipation of dinner with his grandchildren. So he would have felt more than a touch of disappointment when all bar one failed to show. But fortunately the internet has mobilised to ensure Kelsey Harmon's 'Papaw' feels loved after she posted an image on Twitter of her grandfather eating one of the burgers.

The Oklahoma student Kelsey Harmon, wrote underneath: 'Dinner with papaw tonight... He made 12 burgers for all six grandkids and I'm the only one who showed. love him [sic]' Sure enough the image has provoked a collective outpouring of emotion from fellow Twitter users. Many have asked Kelsey to send their messages of love to her Papaw – though some have been a little less positive, with death threats apparently being sent to Miss Harmon's cousins.

'I know I don't know you or papaw but can you tell him that we (the internet) love him?' one person wrote. The original post has been re-tweeted by more than 84,000 users and favourited nearly 150,000 times within 24 hours of being posted. Some seem to have taken more extreme measures with Miss Harmon later posting: 'Papaw is ok guys I promise & he loves all grandkids equally, plz stop sending my cousins death threats everything is ok !!!! [sic]'

Some hoped to be updated on the saga. Kimberley Hendry wrote: 'I need to know more! Did the grandkids apologise? What happened to the rest of Paw Paw's burgers? Is he okay? I need to know'. Another user wrote: 'Now he has 45.9K new grandchildren who would love to have a burger with him I'm in tears this made me so sad I'm crying'.

Shades of JD & DJ added: 'Please tell him that more than 15k people wants to eat hamburgers with him. Big hugs for you two [sic]'. And it seems her Tweet achieved an important reaction closer to home. Her cousin Brock took to Twitter to tell people he had now gone round to Papaw's for a burger.

'Guys don't worry!' Brock tweeted alongside an image of his grandfather tucking into yet another burger. 'I came to Papaw's house and am having a burger!' He later added: "Papaw said he forgives me and wants all of you guys to know that y'all are awesome for making him famous. 'I asked PaPaw what it felt like being the coolest grandpa in the world and he said it's nothing new that he's been the coolest one for a while.'

Loyal dog refuses to leave roadside where owner died in car crash more than a year ago

A loyal dog abandoned after his owner was killed in a car crash in Siberia has resolutely refused to leave the spot for more than a year - in the vain hope that its owner will return.

The loyal hound, believed to be a mongrel, was abandoned after the car crash in autumn 2014, when people first started noticing it standing beside the road, and some even tried to catch it.

But when the animal refused to be captured, kind hearted animal lovers began feeding the dog, and even put a kennel beside the road.

Sadly, the new home was too near to the road and it was destroyed by a truck, although a new one was built only a few weeks later in the village of Berkut, near the town of Yalutorovsk in south-central Russia's Tyumen Oblast region.

The animal still refused to be put off, and came back to the roadside where it continues to wait for its owner.

Animal activist Anastasia Selina said: 'We haven't been able to get anywhere near the animal, it only seems to want to get to its previous owner and as far as we know they didn't survive the car accident.'

'It doesn't trust anyone else, and will not even let anybody even stroke it. We advise people not to disturb it, because we are worried it might run under a car if it gets scared.'

Despite the cold weather, the dog has survived a second Siberian winter and it's all down to the motorists who hanks to motorists throw food out of the window to aid his survival.

Now, a campaign has now been started to find a home for the dog and to re-home him permanently.

The animal has also been called the 'Siberian Hachiko' – named after the famed Japanese Akita dog who is remembered for his remarkable loyalty to his owner.

Well, ka karanga au e, "teata" (me kare koe e aere koi tita, kare koe e aere ki te teata), "take-away" (no rubbish collecting, no take away), "picnic" (mei to mua atu rai), "aere ki te toa" (me kare koe e koi tita, kare koe e aru iaku ki ko i te toa), "end of year shopping" (no picking up rubbish, no Christmas shopping), e te vai atura te au tu bait ka tano i te tapeka ki runga i te matau o te takiri.
2. Naai tika'i ra e koi i te tita. Te pau nei au, na te tamariki, na te mapu, na te aronga mamaata, full stop, kare ka irinaki ua ki runga i tetai au mema i roto i te ngutuare. Kare oki e ture i angaia ana i raro ake i te rangi e na mema ma ua e koi i te tika, kare na mema ma. No reira ka moumou rima teia nga angaanga, "untied we stand, divided we fall" i roto i tetai ngai akatangianga imene.
3. Ngai ka titiri i te tita. E rua rai ngai e titiri'ia ana te tita, (i) ki te ngai titirianga tita (rubbish dump) me kore ka apai ki runga i te mataara na te au tokoka tari tita e apai, (ii) ki runga rai i taau ngai titirianga tita i te kainga. Me te aruia nei teia? Absolutely no way, I'm sad to say. Tetai aronga – tamariki, mapu, even te aronga mamaata – te akariro nei i te kainga o tetai ke ei ngai titirianga tita na ratou, eaa to kotou manako! To ratou taime oki e rave ei i te reira me kite ratou e kare koe pu kainga i te kainga, mei te po me kore kua kite ratou e kua aere koe ki tetai enua ke, ko to ratou taime ia e akaneneva'i ia ratou i te akariro i toou kainga ei rubbish dump. Tetai aronga tei rave i teia kua mou i taua ngai rai, caught red-handed i te reo papaa. Ka akapeea koe tangata pakari e me ko koe teia i mou? Puapinga-kore takiri toou turanga, especially me e au turanga/taoanga teitei toou i roto i te ture, enua e te Evangelia, kua akaea rai koe i na te reira aerenga tuatua'i.

Uianga 3, ka akapeea te tita e kare na tatou? Mei tera ra oki e, na tetai aronga manako-kore tiritiri aere ua i te titi ma te kore takiri e akamanakoanga e naai e koi a muri ake, mei tei taikuia oki i roto i te numero 3 i runga ua ake nei. No te aa, koia tika'i teia au tutu tangata e noo nei i teia ra, tetai pae ka kite kotou me na muri ia ratou i runga i te mataara o te katoatoa, taa mai te poti (can) ki vao na roto i te maramarama o te motoka, taa mai te plastic bag, taa mai te tumu avaava, taa mai tera e tera – kua kite mata tika'i ana oki au, no kidding i te reo porena. Anyway, oki mai ki te uianga, naai e koi i ta ratou tita? Me aru tika'i tatou i te slogan a te Environment Service i Rarotonga nei i te au mataiti i topa e tae mai ki teia ra, te na ko ra oki e "Taau taku tita," "my rubbish and your rubbish," a te taka uara e naai te tita ka koi, koia oki taau tita e taku tita ko te reira ta tatou ka koi, taka-kore ireira e naai e koi i "ta ratou" tita! Te kite ra kotou ireira e kare e tangata i akatakaia i te koi i ta ratou tita no te mea ko taau e taku tita ua oki ta tatou ka koi, i na ko mai ei te slogan, me kare ainei? Ae, ko tera ta te slogan e apii maira, pick up your rubbish while I pick up mine, but what about their rubbish?

I na, teia tetai akaraanga ei ravenga kia kite atu tatou e naai tika'i e koi i ta "ratou" tita. I te tua taatai i toku kainga i Matavera, e putuputu ana au i te aere no tetai au tumuanga: pai tai i te tuatau tai pi, tiki i nga pakete one no te akakiki i te au vaaruua i te kainga, tere ori aere ua apai ia Speckles (ta matou puakaoa) for a beach walk. Eia taime me topa ana au ki taatai toku kite anga i te au tita ta te tangata e titiri ana ki reira; te au moina e te au can beer, carton pepa, moina plastic, kakau kare paa e inangaro akaouia tei roto i te au plastic bags, au potopotonga rakau (imported off-cuts), e te vai atura. Kare, kare teia au tita e no roto mai i te tai me kore e mea pururu ua mai mei runga i te rangi, na te tangata tika'i i titiri ki teia ngai. I te akamataanga, teia taku kiaku uaorai, eaa au ka akaneneva'i iaku i te koi i te reira au tita. Teia ra te mea, no te putuputu oki iaku i te aere ki taatai, kare ireira e ravenga ka kite putuputu ua rai au i te reira au tita. No te iu iaku i te kite putuputuanga i te reira au tita a te au ravenga-kore tei akariro ia taatai e ei rubbish dump, riro atu ireira au e ko au te neneva i te koi anga i ta ratou tita.

Aaee, ko te reira tei tupu, ta ratou tita riro atu e naku i koi, excuse me i na tetai reo ei, unbelievable i roto i tetai akaou reo, eiaue i na te Mangarongaro ei, mamamia i tetai reo ko taku ia mea reka. Kare e kino, kua apai au i te utunga ki runga iaku, penei ireira naku e akatano i te slogan a te Environment Service kia na ko i teia taime e "Taau, taku, ta ratou tita." Eaa ra ireira tei tupu i teia koi anga au i ta ratou tita? (a) kare toku mata e mamae akaou ana me aere au ki taatai, (b) manea te natura tei akonoia no te katoatoa, (c) iti mai te chance o toku e to te katoatoa vaevae/vavia i te puta me kore motuanga i te vaanga moina, (d) I just hope e ko ratou e putuputu nei i te titiri tita ki teia ngai i taatai, me kite ratou e kua ma ta ratou tita i te koi'ia e whoever, penei, penei uake e ka o te manako meitaki ki roto i to ratou au upoko e ka karanga e, "Oohh, me koai teia tangata manako meitaki i te koi i taku tita, akama tika'i au ko au i titiri i taku tita ki teia ngai o te katoatoa e oti akera kua koi'ia e te aronga manako meitaki, i teia taime kare rava au e pera akaou, ka apai roa atu i taku tita ki roto i te rubbish bin." Eaa to kotou manako, me ka taea teia tutu manako e te manako-kore? Ngari ake paa tatou i te karanga e, auraka e peti ki runga, koia oki don't bet on it. Ka vaio atu ra tatou na te tuatau e apii mai e me ka taui te manako o te manako-kore, me kare.

Te akauea e te apiaanga

Noea mai tika'i ra te requirement e kia koi'ia te tita, e kia akonoia te natura tei oronga ua ia mai e te mana katoatoa? Well, tena to kotou au manako, teia toku; te karanga nei au e ko te vaerua i te akono i te natura – tei roto i reira te tuatua o te akonoanga i te natura kia rauka mai te puapinga – tei roto ia i te Genese 2.15 ko tei na ko mai e, "E kua rave iora te Atua ra ko lehova i te tangata; tuku iora iaia ki roto i taua kainga i Edene ra, ei tatanu e ei tiaki." Reo papaa, "Then the Lord God placed the man in the Garden of Eden to cultivate it and guard it." Aaaeee, kua rava ua ki reira. Te vai atura tetai au irava tei taiku i te tita me kore i tetai au mea puapinga-kore i roto i te mata o te Atua tei riro ei akatauanga nana ki te tita (mei te Philippi 3.8, Daniela 2.5, 3.29, Amosa 8.6, Ezera 6.11, Nehemia 4.10, 1 Samuela 2.8), ko teia ra i roto ia Genese, kua rava rai no te turu i te tumu tapura o te puapinga o tera angaanga ra ko te koi tita. No reira te karanga nei au e ko te koi tita, koia oki te akono meitaki i te natura auraka kia tatitaia, e akaueanga ia na to tatou Atu i te ao, te ka kore takiri tetai uatu ture e rauka kia akaapa.

Ok, me e akaueanga ia mei runga mai, ka akapeea ireira tatou? Aue, ka akapeea atu oki? Marira ka koi i te tita i te au ngai katoatoa – taau tita, taku tita, e pera ta ratou atu au tita tei tiritiri aere ki te au ngai ma te manako-kore, nothing in the head. Mouria mai te slogan a te Environment Service "Taau taku tita," tauru iatu "ta ratou" tita ki roto kia riro mai e "Taau, taku, ta ratou tita."

I na me oti oki te tita i te koi, kua tae rai te coffee break, i mua ake ka apai ei i te tamariki ki te teata, ma te akapuu katoa kia ratou e no te aa, ka aere ratou shopping i te openga o te mataiti.

This issue no. 61 of the CICC Newsletter was released at the end of this month March. What's behind the name March? A bit of background below.

March is the third month of the year in both the Julian and Gregorian calendars. It is one of seven months that are 31 days long. In the Northern Hemisphere, the meteorological beginning of spring occurs on the first day of March. The March equinox on the 20th or 21st marks the astronomical beginning of spring in the Northern Hemisphere and the beginning of autumn in the Southern Hemisphere, where September is the seasonal equivalent of the Northern Hemisphere's March.

Origin

The name of March comes from Latin Martius, the first month of the earliest Roman calendar. It was named for Mars, the Roman god of war who was also regarded as a guardian of agriculture and an ancestor of the Roman people through his sons Romulus and Remus. His month Martius was the beginning of the season for both farming and warfare, and the festivals held in his honor during the month were mirrored by others in October, when the season for these activities came to a close.

Martius remained the first month of the Roman calendar year perhaps as late as 153 BC, and several religious observances in the first half of the month were originally new year's celebrations. Even in late antiquity, Roman mosaics picturing the months sometimes still placed March first. March 1 began the numbered year in Russia until the end of the 15th century. Great Britain and its colonies continued to use March 25 until 1752, when they finally adopted the Gregorian calendar. Many other cultures and religions still celebrate the beginning of the New Year in March. March is the first month of spring in the Northern Hemisphere (North America, Europe, Asia and part of Africa) and the first month of fall or autumn in the Southern Hemisphere (South America, part of Africa, and Oceania).

History

March was originally the first month of the year in the Roman calendar because of its association with the first day of spring. The vernal or March equinox falls during this month between the 19th and 21st. March also marked a time when war would resume after the long winter months. January became the first month of the calendar year around 700 BCE. Although January 1st is New Year's Day, many cultures and religions still celebrate the beginning of the New Year in March.

Middle English - March or Marche

Latin name - Martius mensis - Month of Mars

Old English – Martius

Birth Flower and Stone

March's birth flower is the daffodil.

The birthstones for March are aquamarine and bloodstone which symbolize courage.

PART 16 (last part, continued from the last newsletter)

ARTICLE 12

And the Life Everlasting

The great truth affirmed in the concluding article of the Creed is the Life Everlasting: "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life." This life will be the portion of all who are acquitted in the day of judgement, and they will then enter upon new experiences. Death and hell shall be cast into the lake of fire, and the redeemed, no longer subject to imperfection, decay, or death, shall be raised to the right hand of the Father, where there is fulness of joy; to partake of those pleasures for evermore which have been purchased for them by the blood of the Lamb.

It is interesting to note the gradual development of this doctrine, which was first fully expressed by Him who brought life and immortality to light. We have the statement of the writer to the Hebrews that the faith of Old Testament saints had in view the continuance of life after death in "a better country, that is, an heavenly." Whether this faith grasped the doctrine of bodily resurrection, in addition to that of the immortality of the soul, we are not told. It is remarkable that throughout the books of Moses there is an absence of reference to the future life as a motive to holy living. Prosperity and adversity in this life are set forth as the reward or punishment of conduct, leading to the inference, either that retribution in the future life was not revealed, or that it exercised little practical influence. As time passed the doctrine of everlasting life for body and soul emerged in the Psalms and in the prophetic writings, but sometimes side by side with such gloomy views regarding death and its consequences as to leave the impression that belief in it was weak and fitful. In the long period that passed between the time when Old Testament prophecy ceased and the advent of Christ, the fierce persecutions to which the Jews were subjected appear to have strengthened their faith in a future life of blessedness, in which the body, delivered from the grave and again united to the soul, shall participate.

The happiness of the kingdom of heaven is in Scripture termed "life," because it constitutes the life for which man was created. Being made in the likeness of God, his nature can obtain full satisfaction, and his powers will expand into fruition, only when he enters upon a life which resembles, in proportion to its measure and capacity, the life of God. Jesus spoke of regeneration as entering into life. Those who receive the Gospel message and walk in the footsteps of Christ are said to be born again to receive in their conversion the beginning of a new existence, of which the entrance of the infant into the world is a fitting emblem. They possess now not only a natural life, but a life hid with Christ in God, which is a pledge to them that "when he who is their life shall appear, they also shall appear with him in glory." Knowledge of God the Father and of Jesus Christ, imparted by the Holy Spirit, is said by our Lord to be Life Eternal. "This is life eternal, to know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

Standing at the end of the Creed, this article expresses the consummation of the work accomplished for man by the Three Persons of the Godhead. The Father created man and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, that he might glorify God and enjoy Him for ever; and when, through the fall, man had forfeited the gift of life, God spared not His own Son, that, through His dying, pardon and blessed life might be brought within the reach of the fallen; the Son assumed human nature and suffered and died, that He might deliver men from death, temporal and eternal, and procure for them everlasting life; the Holy Ghost, the Giver of life, sanctifies the believer and makes him meet for the inheritance of the saints. All the means of grace were given for the purpose of convincing and converting men, and of preparing them for entrance into and enjoyment of the blessed life in eternity.

The Everlasting Life of the Creed covers more than the immortality of the soul. Even heathens grasped in some measure the fact that the spirit of man survives separation from the body; but life for the body in reunion with the soul is a doctrine of revelation. In the Pagan world various conflicting beliefs were held as to the condition of men after death. Some thought that existence terminated at death; others that men then lost their personality and were absorbed into the deity; and others that the spirit was released by death and then entered on a separate existence, possessed of personality and capable of enjoyment; but of the Christian doctrine of resurrection-life for soul and body in abiding reunion they were altogether ignorant. Those consolations which Christianity brings to the mourner were unknown.

There is an interesting letter extant which was written to Cicero, the Roman orator, by a friend who sought to comfort him after the death of his daughter Julia, in which the consolation tendered strikingly marks the distinction between Pagan and Christian views regarding death. Cicero was reminded by his friend that even solid and substantial cities, such as those whose ruined remains were to be seen in Asia Minor, were doomed to decay and destruction; and if so, it could not be thought that man's frail body can escape a similar experience. This is poor comfort in comparison with the hope of glory which sustains the Christian under trial. He knows not only that his soul shall live for ever, but that the life of eternity is one in which the body too, then incapable of pain, weariness, or death, shall have part. "We know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, and house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens."

Everlasting existence after resurrection will be the portion of the righteous and the wicked. Attempts have been made to explain away various emphatic Scripture statements regarding the doom of the ungodly, with the view of lessening its terrors; but, if we are to accept the plain meaning of these statements, there seems to be no reasonable interpretation of them which gives sanction to the belief that this doom can be escaped.

What is called the doctrine of Conditional Immortality finds not a few advocates and adherents, who hold that existence in the future state is exclusively for the faithful, and that the sentence to be executed upon the wicked at death or at judgment is annihilation. A different belief, termed "The Larger Hope," is maintained by others, who affirm that the punishment to which those dying impenitent are to be subjected will in time work reformation and cleansing, after which, restored to God's favour, they will enter upon a life of happiness.

It is a strong argument against such doctrines that the same word which our Lord employs to describe the permanent blessedness of the redeemed is used by Him to denote the punishment of the wicked. The reward and the punishment are both declared by Him to be everlasting or eternal. The same Greek word is in the English New Testament sometimes rendered eternal and sometimes everlasting. The portion of the righteous will be life everlasting; that of the wicked is described as consisting, not in annihilation or in terminable suffering, but in "everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power." While this article may be regarded as bearing upon the doom of the ungodly, it is rather to be viewed as affirming the eternal blessedness of the risen saints.

The everlasting life begins on earth, but is perfected only in eternity. It is sometimes spoken of as a present possession: "He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life." Again it is spoken of as a reward in futurity: "He shall receive and hundredfold now in this time ... and in the world to come eternal life." Our knowledge of what that life will be is very limited. Human words cannot describe it; human beings in this life cannot understand it. We know that it will arise from knowledge of God. Men will be equal to the angels who see God. "Now we see through a glass darkly," but "we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."

Statements regarding the happiness of the saints are in Scripture expressed sometimes in negative and sometimes in positive terms. In the new heavens and the new earth the redeemed "shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more"; "There shall be no night there; and they need no candle, neither light of the sun; for the Lord God giveth them light." Pain and sorrow and death can never touch them; they shall be delivered from perplexing doubts, from all misery and trouble. Care and anxiety shall be banished for ever, and God will wipe away all tears from every eye.

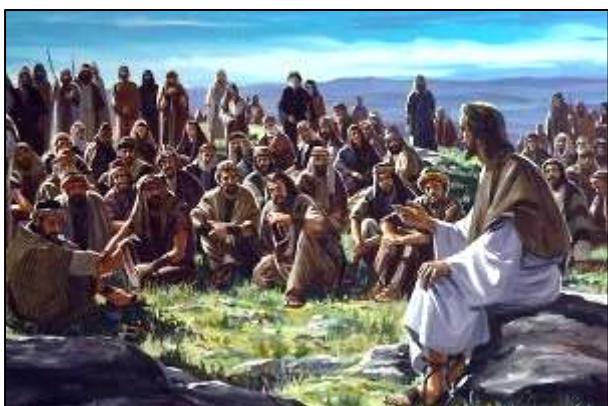

There are also many positive statements regarding the future life. Not only will there be the absence of all that is painful and productive of sorrow; those for whom it is prepared shall enter into rest. They shall possess abiding peace, and the joy of their Lord will become their own. Their bodies shall be like Christ's own glorious body, which, when transfigured on Tabor, shone as the sun, and was white as the light. They shall be satisfied, when they awake, with the Divine likeness. "They shall shine as the brightness of the firmament, and as the stars for ever and ever." They shall sit down with Christ upon His throne, and shall be rulers over cities.

"They are as the angels of God in heaven." In the many mansions of the Father's house there will be a place for every saint. Each will be rewarded according to his works. Some are to be raised to higher glory than others some are to have authority over ten cities, and some are to bear rule over five—but all the saints will be happy in the eternal enjoyment of God's favour, which is life; and of His loving kindness, which is better than life.
